volume 14

When I spend too much time drawing my favorite cars into Dr. Slump, Mashirito gets mad at me. "Hey, what's the big idea? More cars? Oh, wait, is a car the main character in this manga? Look, I'm sick of cars. Got it?" To which I respond: "Yes, sir. Understood, sir. I'll go easy on the cars, sir!" And then, despite all that, I drew another car on this cover... I'm sorry! I can't help myself!

ME AND PLASTIC MODELS

When I tell people I like building plastic models, they frown, and I guess they're right: it's not a particularly healthy hobby. You never hear about a sweating craftsman toiling away under a blue sky and blazing sun, finally completing his plastic-model masterpiece. I agree, it's a little sad to sit at my desk for hours scribbling away at a manga, then sit for more hours at my desk making models, but you gotta fess up and do what you like sometimes.

And when you do something for twenty years and you still aren't sick of it, you have to admit you like it.

My favorite part is the prelude to a build--looking at reference books, thinking about how to add to this piece or modify another piece. But when I actually start building, boy, it's like a marathon, and I sometimes find myself wondering why I started doing this in the first place, but like a mountain climber wheezing his way to the summit, I strive ever onward. At least, that's how I see myself.

When I finish one, I run screaming to my wife. "Ta-dah! Look! Isn't it amazing!?" To which she usually replies "hmm?" without even opening her mouth.

Humph. Though I guess you can't expect people to react to something they're not interested in. Like if she showed me this picture of an amazingly handsome guy, I would probably say "hmm?" too... so I mumble and grumble to myself as I crack open yet another plastic-model kit.

MODEL GUNS AND ME

Model guns were all the rage when I was in junior high. I'm talking about the cool ones made out of real metal, so they feel heavy, like the real thing. I didn't get much allowance, so I couldn't buy one, but one of my friends who got a big allowance had one, and he let me borrow it.

"Hmm," I said. "Isn't this the same gun that Franco Nero was shooting in that movie, Django, that they showed in the gymnasium, and all the bad guys were using it too? Wow. Wowowowowow!!! That's cool!"

Being a young boy at the time, when something caught my fancy, boy, I was persistent about it--to the point of being annoying (I still am like this). Buy me one please! Pleeeeease! I begged my parents, but my pleas were cruelly denied! I decided I would have to get a job and earn money to buy one myself, and until then, I would just have to draw gun after gun to soothe my craving.

When I finally did get it, I remember my heart danced like a reveler at the local festival, and I was lost in a whirlwind of emotion.

Maybe it's flashbacks from that time or something, but when I hear about a new model coming out, I still get a dry mouth and sweaty palms just thinking about it.

And that's the story of how persistent I can be about something I like. The end.

ME AND ANIMALS, PART 1

I'm sure those of you who read my manga (for which I'm forever grateful) know this already, but I'm somewhat fond of animals. "Somewhat," you say? Yes, but though I do love most animals, there is one I truly HATE.

RATS!! I hate them so much I pee my pants. I hate them more than deadlines and rejected manuscripts. When I was working a regular job, I used to commute on my motorcycle. I'd often find myself riding home late at night on some backwoods road, when my headlights would fall on a rat corpse!!! Yeeeargh!! I'd scream and reflexively yank the handle and--whomp!--do a cartwheel into a rice field. This happened at least four times. Or I'd shout "Augh! A rat!!" and feel like my heart was going to explode when I'd notice the thing was too long to be a rat. "Arrrgh! Curse you, foul prankster!" I'd shout at the weasel lying in the road. I hate weasels. My cat Mike, beaming with pride, would come up to show off the rats he would catch. It's true! I hate him too.

ME AND ANIMALS, PART 2

Loving animals as I do, I've had many pets since my youth. Part of me is proud of my history with animals, and part of me feels real bad about the ones I let die by mistake.

Paddy sparrows, yellow-backed parrots, canaries, parakeets, sparrows, white-eyes, chicks (later, chickens), crows, dogs, cats, bats, newts, geckos, lizards, snakes, turtles, pollywogs (later, frogs), goldfish, carp, killifish, stag beetles, goliath beetles, bell-ring bugs, ants, praying mantises, caterpillars (later, butterflies), spiders, larvae (later, mosquitoes), crayfish...the list goes on.

Once, I even kept a rat, and I hate rats!!! (Well, it was a field mouse, really.)

See, I had this idea in my youth that, since I was so scared of rats, if I kept one, maybe I'd get used to it and grow to like them. But in the end, I still hated it, so I let it go in the field behind the house. Good riddance!

Once, I begged my parents for a horse, and I even asked for a chimpanzee! My chimpanzee craze cooled off quick when I went to the zoo and saw how dirty their butts get.

Currently at my house, we have a dog, Turbo-maru, seven paddy sparrows, and two parakeets.

ME AND ANIMALS, PART 3

I think I was in first grade or so when the kid who lived next door found an injured crow hopping around and brought it to me. It was the first time I'd ever seen a crow so close. It was such a large, magnificent bird. It immediately stirred my interest, and I decided to take it home and take care of it. My parents were against it, crows being ill omens and all, but in the end, they were the ones feeding and taking care of it. "Prince Caw," as he was rather simply named, recovered quickly, but even after he learned to fly, he took to me and would hop along after me when I walked around. The thing that impressed me most was how he, like a parrot, could say simple words. I don't remember exactly what he said, but I think it was something like "hello" and "idiot." We became the best of friends, but one day, he flew off and never came back.

I was so lonely, I cried and cried. When I hear crows cawing near my house now, I wonder if any of them might be Prince Caw's grandchildren, and it makes me smile.

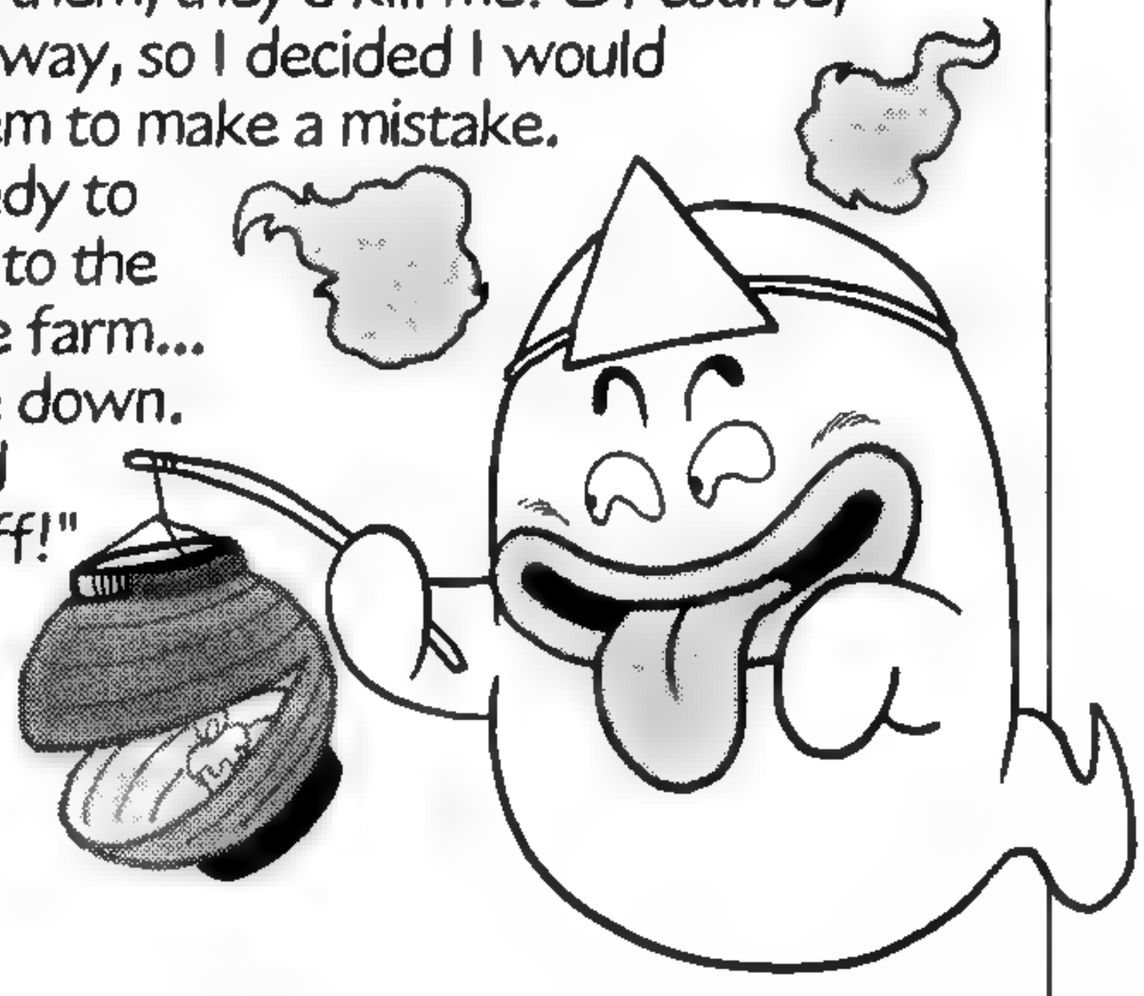
ME AND GHOSTS

I doubt there are many people who love ghosts, but I really, really hate them. Yes, I'm a scaredy-cat, and for no particular reason. I'm just scared. Not that I run into ghosts all that frequently, but I'm scared enough of them that, if I did run into one, I'm confident I could black out.

One night about two years ago, I was sleeping, and I got that weird kind of temporary paralysis where you wake up but your body can't move. It was the first time it'd ever happened, and it didn't occur to me that this was something I'd heard about happening before. Why not? There was a reason... a terrifying reason...

So I was lying in my futon, and I felt like something was pressing down on my chest. So I open my eyes a little and see this strange man standing over me, pushing me down into the futon. What's more, there's this other guy holding down my legs. I look again and see two women behind him, laughing their heads off. For some reason, I thought they must be robbers, so I quickly closed my eyes. Why? Because if they discovered I was awake and had seen them, they'd kill me! Of course, they might just kill me anyway, so I decided I would play dead and wait for them to make a mistake.

When they did, I'd be ready to bolt! So, I let my head loll to the side like I'd just bought the farm... but they kept pressing me down. Finally, I'd had enough and I shouted "Hey! knock it off!" when the four people suddenly disappeared! I realized they must have been ghosts and promptly blacked out. The end.



Enter Syoppaman!

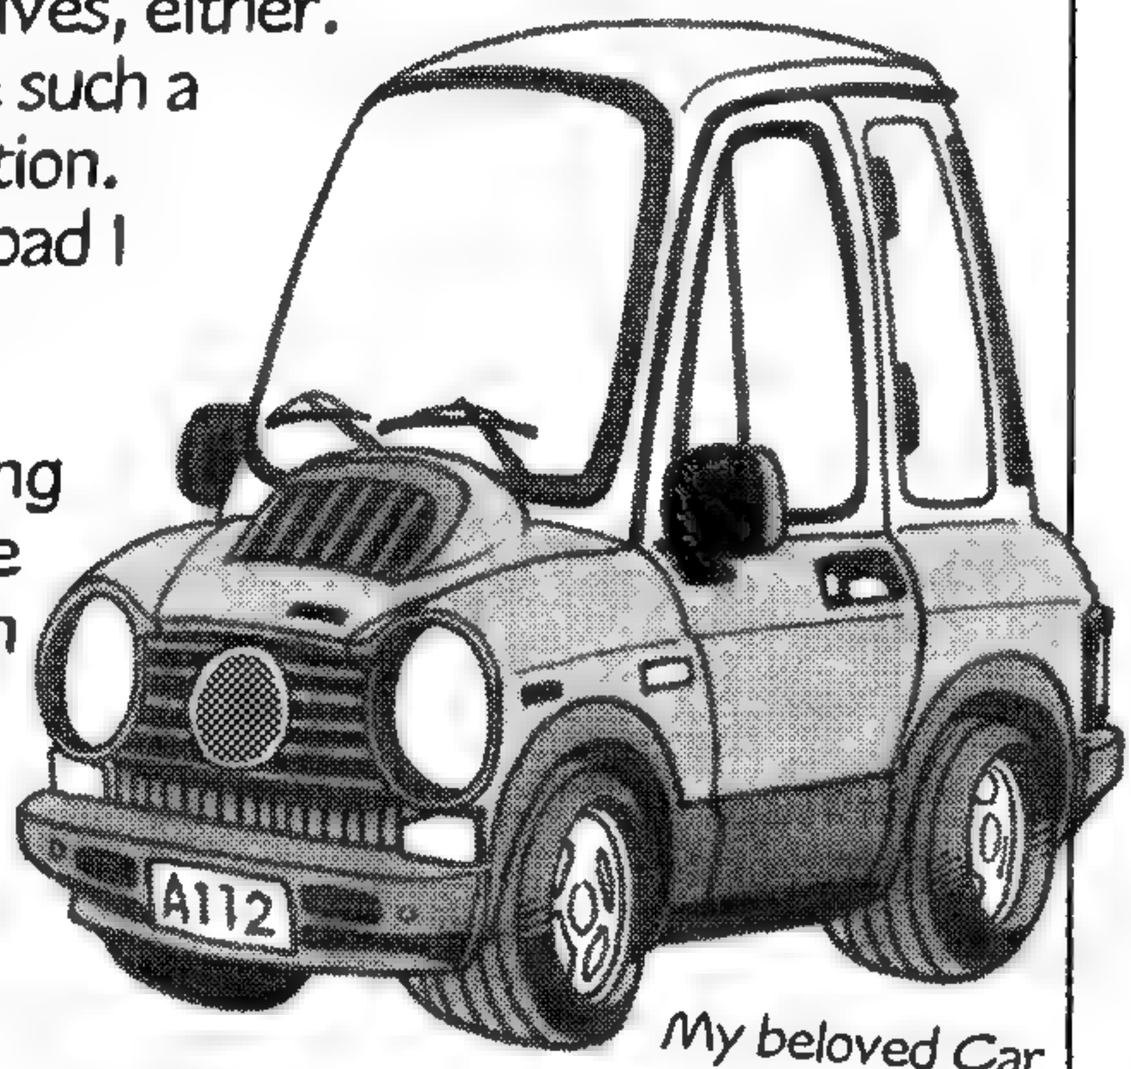
ME AND CARS

I think my love for cars and motorbikes and all things mechanical comes from my old man. Back in the day, my dad did super cool things like race motorbikes, and after he broke a bone and quit, he went into auto repair. I still remember seeing that "Toriyama Motors" sign when I was a kid. (It went out of business pretty quick, unfortunately.) In any case, my dad's a big fan of cars and motorcycles too.

My favorite cars are small things with great curves. I'm all about the style, and if it goes fast, too, I've got no complaints. Cars lately have all the features you'd want, but they're lacking in the style department. Which makes it sound like I'm some kind of car expert, but hold on-- it's really not like that. It's just, I'm in love with the things. I don't understand how they're put together, and if you start talking car parts, my face goes blank. In fact, I don't really like going for drives, either. Mostly because I have such a terrible sense of direction. If I happen to take a road I don't know by heart, I instantly get lost. Of course, it's embarrassing to get lost when you're close to home, so when that happens I always ask directions with a southern accent. See? I ain't from 'round these parts.



My beloved Car.

ME AND MY 50CC MOTORBIKE

Why a little 50cc bike? Simple, I don't have a motorcycle operator's license, and you need one for anything with a bigger engine than that.

I've thought about getting a license plenty of times, but I could never bring myself to take the plunge, mostly because I like my 50cc bike so much. It invites-- rather than pressures--you to ride. Laid-back. Easy-like. The ones with the knock-latch that lets you shift gears, you can ride with one hand, too. The new ones like scooters, where you don't have to change the gears at all, are easier, but a little on the boring side. I always liked the BRRROM GFAW GWOON when shifting down, you see.

A long time ago, I used to ride around on a Dax Honda, but for some reason, my Dax was fond of getting flats. None of my friends' Daxes had any problem at all, which makes me think I must have been riding on some pretty rough roads. I can remember getting a flat at least ten times. And in order to fix a flat tire, you have to pull apart the entire rear-wheel assembly, so after I pushed it home, puffing and wheezing, I'd get my hands pitch black wrestling with my wheel for an hour. I might be weak with machines, but when it comes to the rear wheel of a Dax, I'm a PhD.

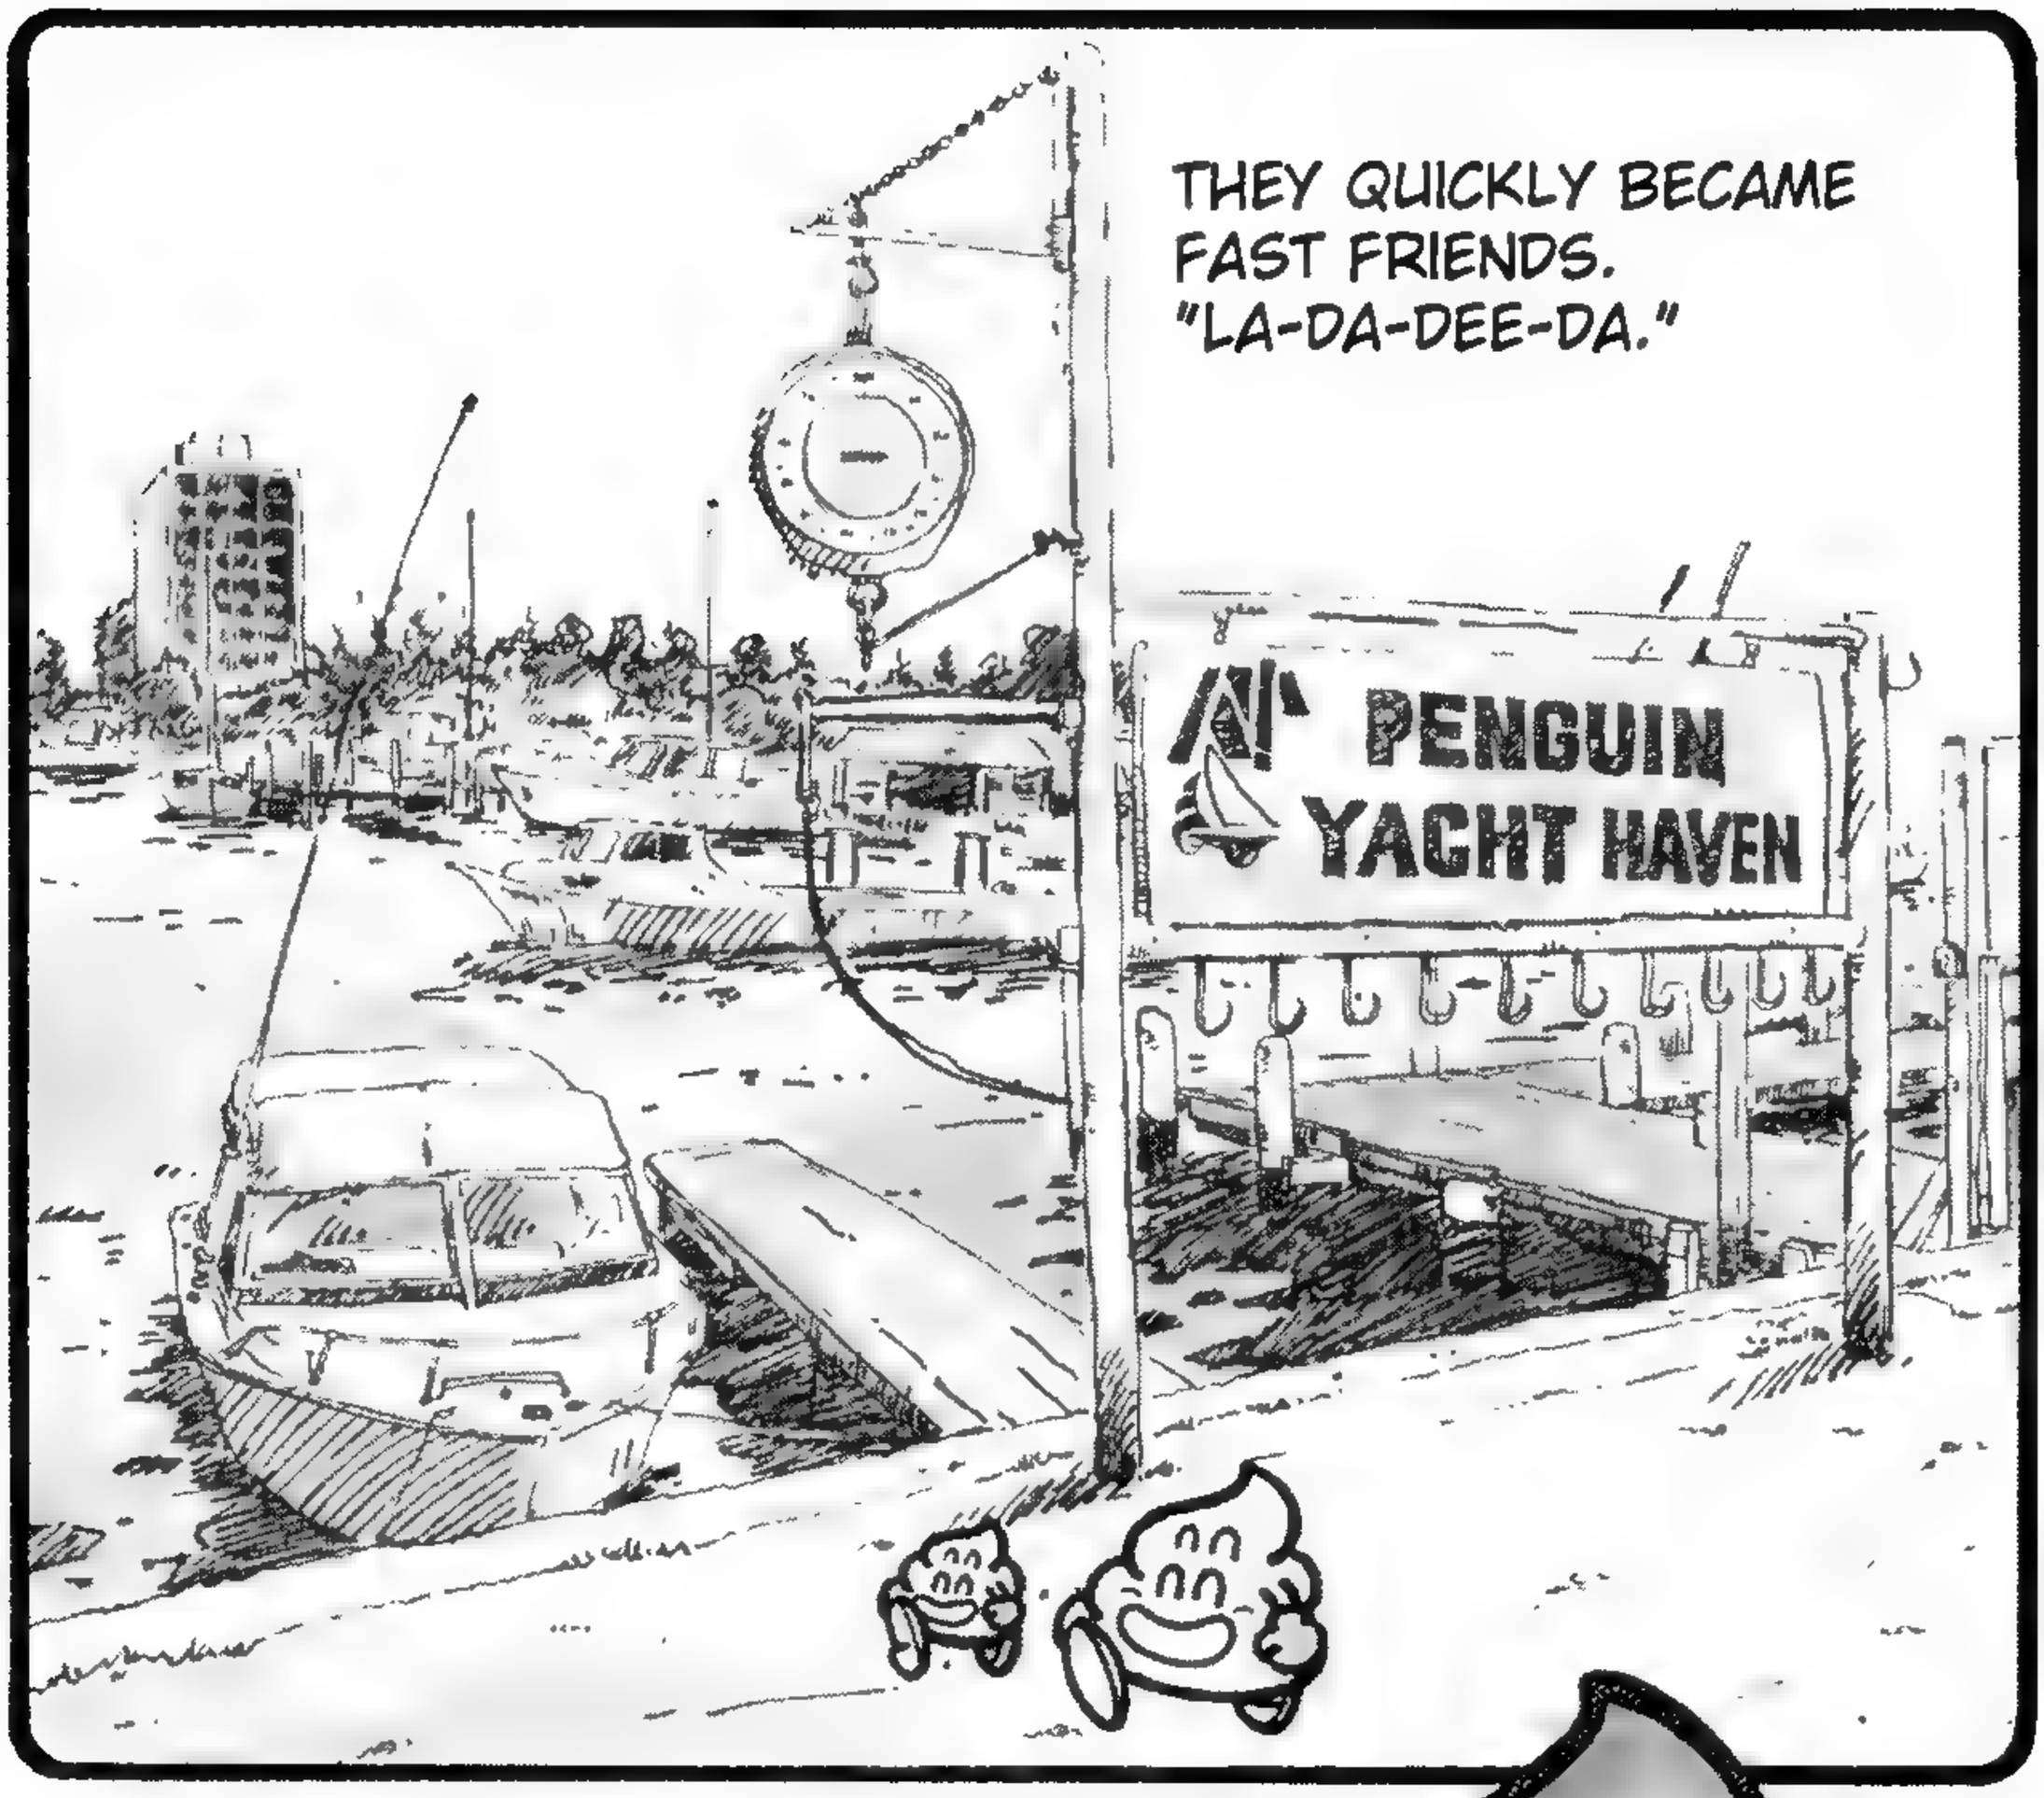
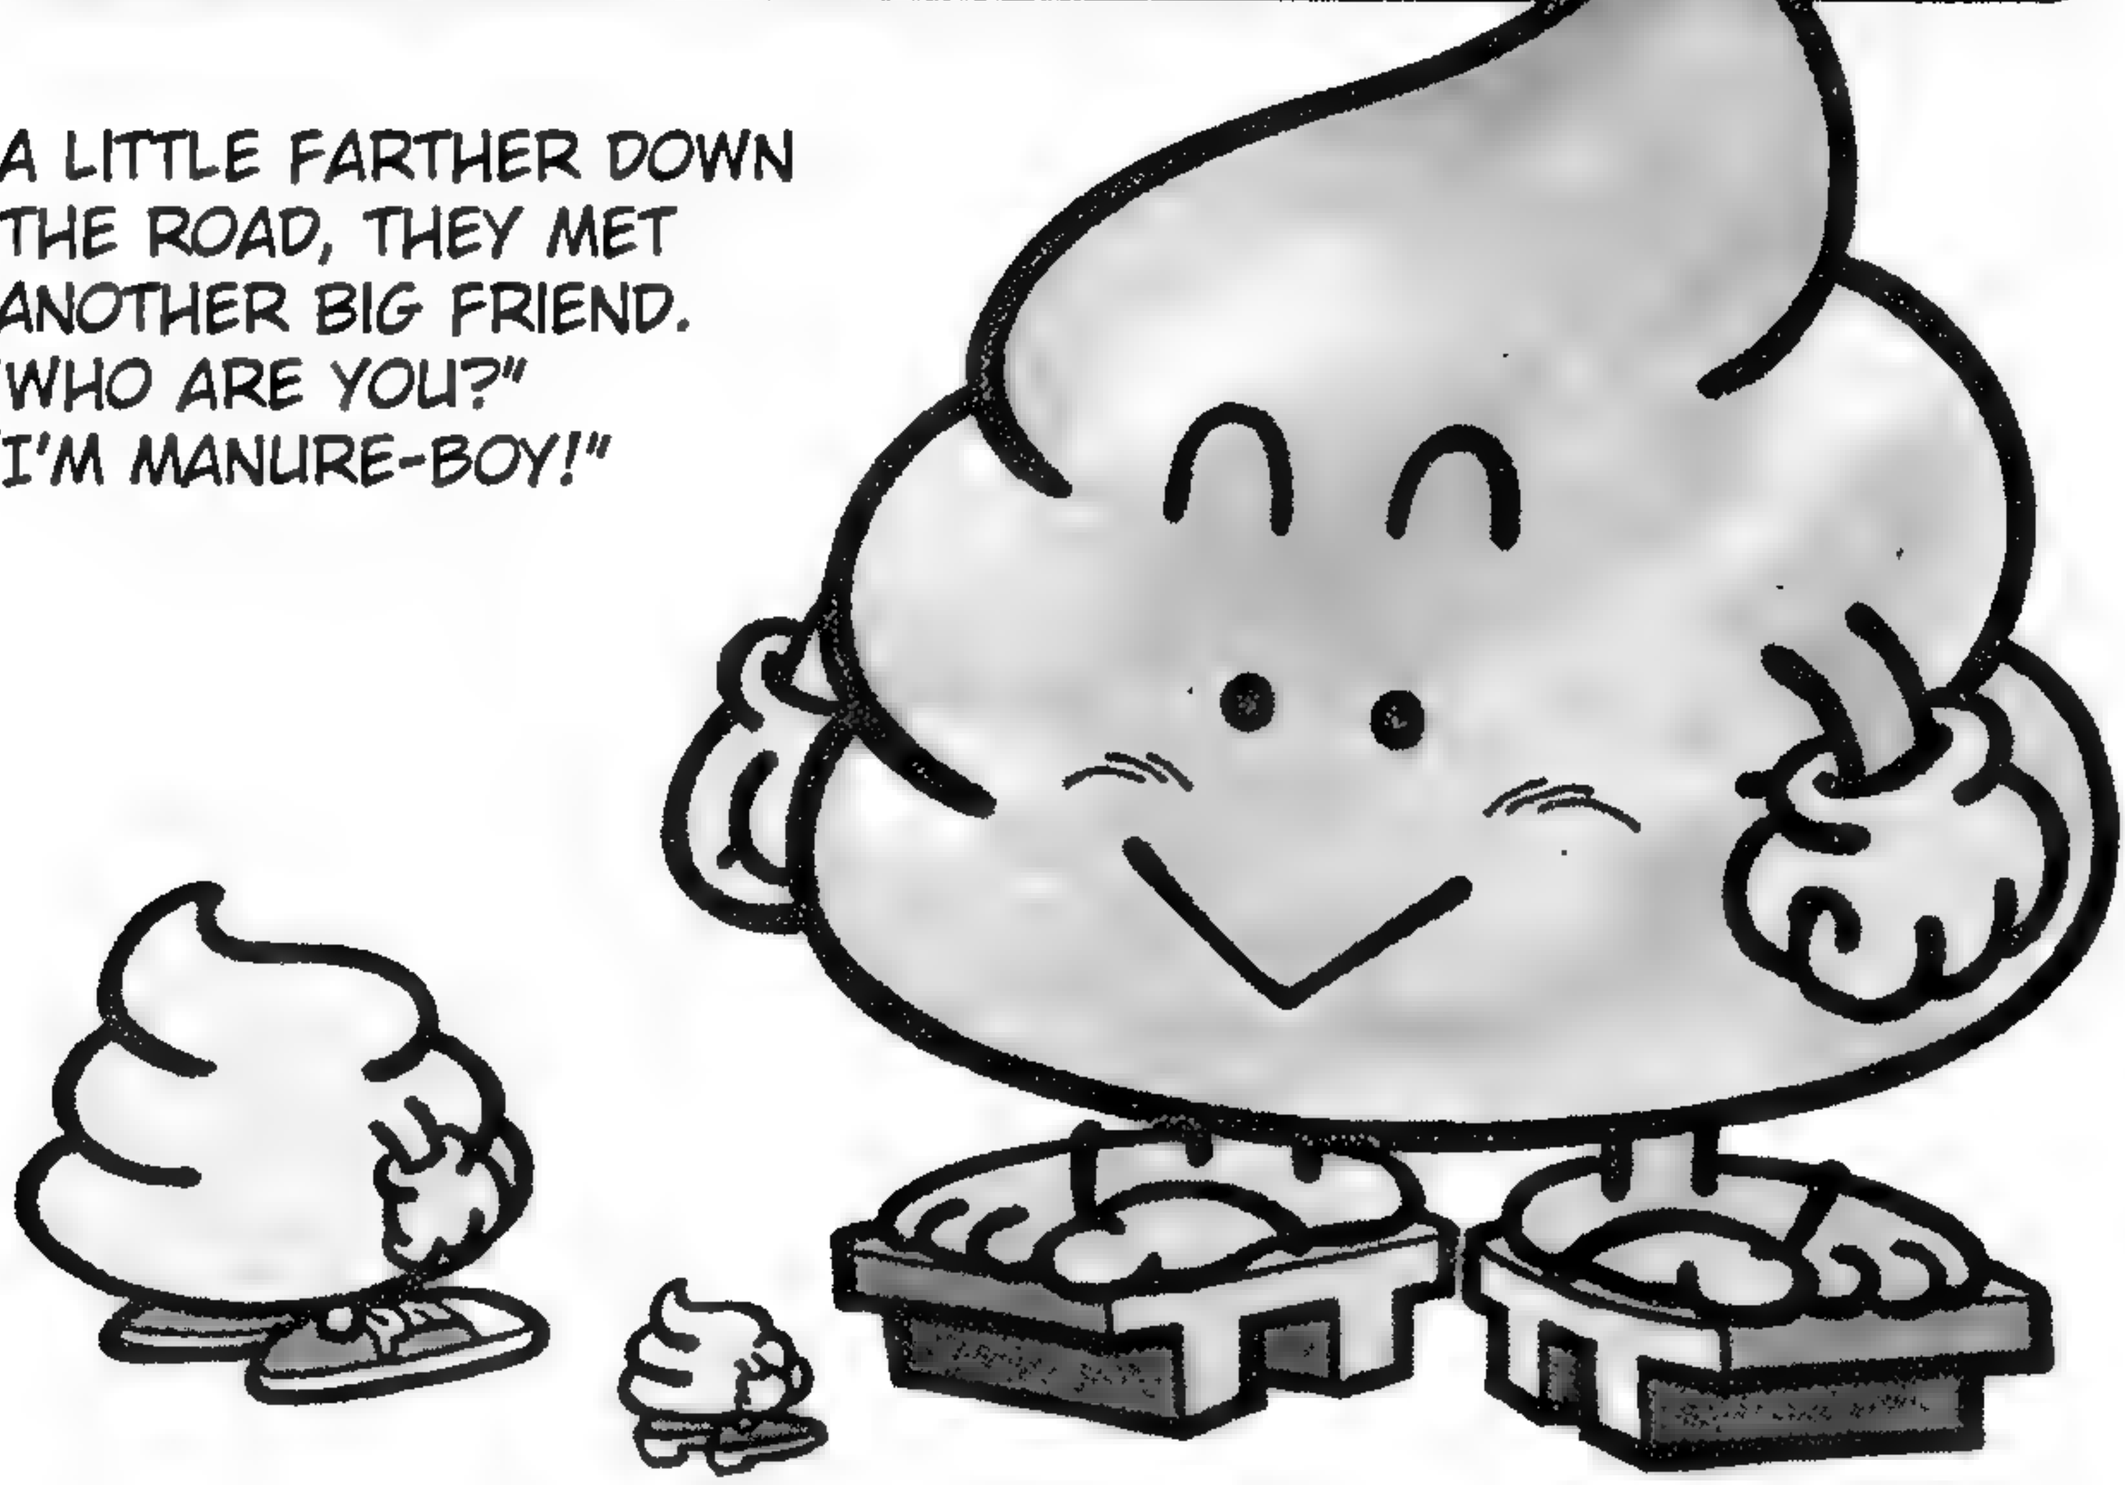
"I'M BIRD-POOP-BOY!"

AFTER A WHILE, HE MET A LITTLE FRIEND. "WHO ARE YOU?"

THEY QUICKLY BECAME FAST FRIENDS. "LA-DA-DEE-DA."



A LITTLE FARTHER DOWN THE ROAD, THEY MET ANOTHER BIG FRIEND.
"WHO ARE YOU?"
"I'M MANURE-BOY!"



AND SO THE THREE
WALKED HAPPILY ALONG.
"LA-DA-DEE-DA-DA."

WHEN THEY HAD GONE A LITTLE FARTHER,
THEY MET A VERY CURIOUS FRIEND INDEED!
"HEY! WHOSE POOP ARE YOU?" THEY ASKED.

"SILLY POOPS! I'M A

"HUH. COOL PANTS."

AND BEFORE THEY KNEW IT, IT WAS EVENING.
